

a future for education

Dear Mr Steve Marshall-Taylor,

My name is Monty Middleton-Burn, and I am the 16-year-old founder of the Movement of Real Skills (MORS). MORS is an initiative dedicated to advocating for a more practical and skills-based approach to education within the British system, focusing on better preparing students for real-world challenges.

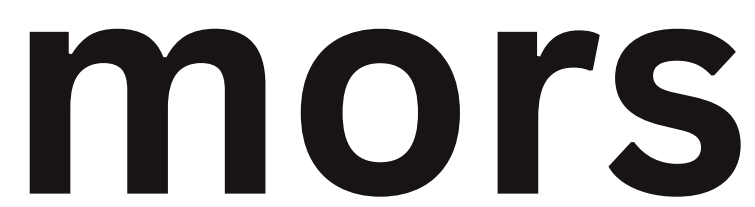

I am reaching out to kindly request your permission to distribute a brief survey among the teachers at Brighton College. The aim of this survey is to gather insights and opinions from educators on how the current curriculum could evolve to better serve students' needs. We believe teachers are invaluable sources of wisdom on this topic, and their feedback would greatly support our mission to foster meaningful change in education.

If you would be open to this proposal, please feel free to contact me personally at monty@mors.org.uk. Additionally, you can learn more about our vision and work at mors.org.uk.

Thank you very much for considering this request. I look forward to the possibility of working together to inspire a future of education that works.

Kind regards,

Founder, MORS

a future for education

Dear Mr. Dominic Mott,

My name is Monty Middleton-Burn, and I am the 16-year-old founder of the Movement of Real Skills (MORS). MORS is an initiative dedicated to advocating for a more practical and skills-based approach to education within the British system, focusing on better preparing students for real-world challenges.

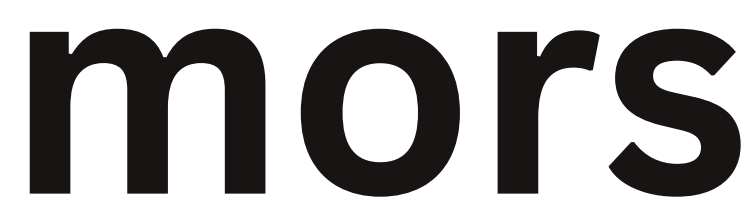

I am reaching out to kindly request your permission to distribute a brief survey among the teachers at Hurstpierpoint College. The aim of this survey is to gather insights and opinions from educators on how the current curriculum could evolve to better serve students' needs. We believe teachers are invaluable sources of wisdom on this topic, and their feedback would greatly support our mission to foster meaningful change in education.

If you would be open to this proposal, please feel free to contact me personally at monty@mors.org.uk. Additionally, you can learn more about our vision and work at mors.org.uk.

Thank you very much for considering this request. I look forward to the possibility of working together to inspire a future of education that works.

Kind regards,

Founder, MORS

a future for education

Dear Dr Tim Greene,

My name is Monty Middleton-Burn, and I am the 16-year-old founder of the Movement of Real Skills (MORS). MORS is an initiative dedicated to advocating for a more practical and skills-based approach to education within the British system, focusing on better preparing students for real-world challenges.

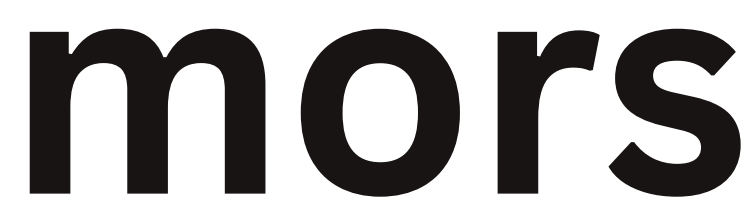

I am reaching out to kindly request your permission to distribute a brief survey among the teachers at Clifton College. The aim of this survey is to gather insights and opinions from educators on how the current curriculum could evolve to better serve students' needs. We believe teachers are invaluable sources of wisdom on this topic, and their feedback would greatly support our mission to foster meaningful change in education.

If you would be open to this proposal, please feel free to contact me personally at monty@mors.org.uk. Additionally, you can learn more about our vision and work at mors.org.uk.

Thank you very much for considering this request. I look forward to the possibility of working together to inspire a future of education that works.

Kind regards,

Founder, MORS

a future for education

Dear Mr. Leo Winkley,

My name is Monty Middleton-Burn, and I am the 16-year-old founder of the Movement of Real Skills (MORS). MORS is an initiative dedicated to advocating for a more practical and skills-based approach to education within the British system, focusing on better preparing students for real-world challenges.

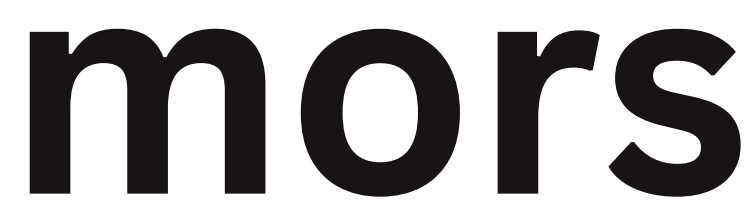

I am reaching out to kindly request your permission to distribute a brief survey among the teachers at Shrewsbury School. The aim of this survey is to gather insights and opinions from educators on how the current curriculum could evolve to better serve students' needs. We believe teachers are invaluable sources of wisdom on this topic, and their feedback would greatly support our mission to foster meaningful change in education.

If you would be open to this proposal, please feel free to contact me personally at monty@mors.org.uk. Additionally, you can learn more about our vision and work at mors.org.uk.

Thank you very much for considering this request. I look forward to the possibility of working together to inspire a future of education that works.

Kind regards,

Founder, MORS

a future for education

Dear Mr. Matt Hillier,

My name is Monty Middleton-Burn, and I am the 16-year-old founder of the Movement of Real Skills (MORS). MORS is an initiative dedicated to advocating for a more practical and skills-based approach to education within the British system, focusing on better preparing students for real-world challenges.

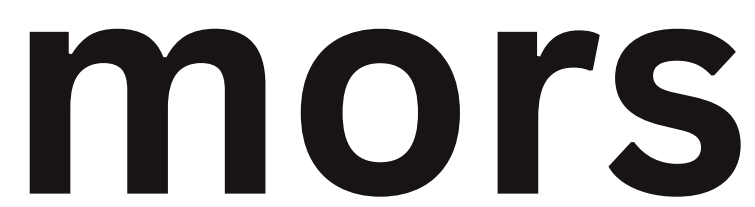

I am reaching out to kindly request your permission to distribute a brief survey among the teachers at Dorothy Stringer School. The aim of this survey is to gather insights and opinions from educators on how the current curriculum could evolve to better serve students' needs. We believe teachers are invaluable sources of wisdom on this topic, and their feedback would greatly support our mission to foster meaningful change in education.

If you would be open to this proposal, please feel free to contact me personally at monty@mors.org.uk. Additionally, you can learn more about our vision and work at mors.org.uk.

Thank you very much for considering this request. I look forward to the possibility of working together to inspire a future of education that works.

Kind regards,

Founder, MORS

a future for education

Dear Mrs. Shelly Baker,

My name is Monty Middleton-Burn, and I am the 16-year-old founder of the Movement of Real Skills (MORS). MORS is an initiative dedicated to advocating for a more practical and skills-based approach to education within the British system, focusing on better preparing students for real-world challenges.

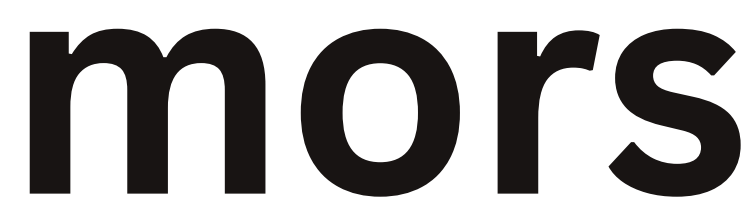

I am reaching out to kindly request your permission to distribute a brief survey among the teachers at Varndean School. The aim of this survey is to gather insights and opinions from educators on how the current curriculum could evolve to better serve students' needs. We believe teachers are invaluable sources of wisdom on this topic, and their feedback would greatly support our mission to foster meaningful change in education.

If you would be open to this proposal, please feel free to contact me personally at monty@mors.org.uk. Additionally, you can learn more about our vision and work at mors.org.uk.

Thank you very much for considering this request. I look forward to the possibility of working together to inspire a future of education that works.

Kind regards,

Founder, MORS

a future for education

Dear Mr. Curtis-Brignell,

My name is Monty Middleton-Burn, and I am the 16-year-old founder of the Movement of Real Skills (MORS). MORS is an initiative dedicated to advocating for a more practical and skills-based approach to education within the British system, focusing on better preparing students for real-world challenges.

I am reaching out to kindly request your permission to distribute a brief survey among the teachers at the Priory School. The aim of this survey is to gather insights and opinions from educators on how the current curriculum could evolve to better serve students' needs. We believe teachers are invaluable sources of wisdom on this topic, and their feedback would greatly support our mission to foster meaningful change in education.

If you would be open to this proposal, please feel free to contact me personally at monty@mors.org.uk. Additionally, you can learn more about our vision and work at mors.org.uk.

Thank you very much for considering this request. I look forward to the possibility of working together to inspire a future of education that works.

Kind regards,

Founder, MORS

mors

a future for education

Dear Mr. Stephen Jones,

My name is Monty Middleton-Burn, and I am the 16-year-old founder of the Movement of Real Skills (MORS). MORS is an initiative dedicated to advocating for a more practical and skills-based approach to education within the British system, focusing on better preparing students for real-world challenges.

I am reaching out to kindly request your permission to distribute a brief survey among the teachers at Cardiff High School. The aim of this survey is to gather insights and opinions from educators on how the current curriculum could evolve to better serve students' needs. We believe teachers are invaluable sources of wisdom on this topic, and their feedback would greatly support our mission to foster meaningful change in education.

If you would be open to this proposal, please feel free to contact me personally at monty@mors.org.uk. Additionally, you can learn more about our vision and work at mors.org.uk.

Thank you very much for considering this request. I look forward to the possibility of working together to inspire a future of education that works.

Kind regards,

Founder, MORS

a future for education

Dear Mr. Matthew H T Evans,

My name is Monty Middleton-Burn, and I am the 16-year-old founder of the Movement of Real Skills (MORS). MORS is an initiative dedicated to advocating for a more practical and skills-based approach to education within the British system, focusing on better preparing students for real-world challenges.

I am reaching out to kindly request your permission to distribute a brief survey among the teachers at Ysgol Gyfun Gymraeg Glantaf. The aim of this survey is to gather insights and opinions from educators on how the current curriculum could evolve to better serve students' needs. We believe teachers are invaluable sources of wisdom on this topic, and their feedback would greatly support our mission to foster meaningful change in education.

If you would be open to this proposal, please feel free to contact me personally at monty@mors.org.uk. Additionally, you can learn more about our vision and work at mors.org.uk.

Thank you very much for considering this request. I look forward to the possibility of working together to inspire a future of education that works.

Kind regards,

Founder, MORS

mors

dyfodol ar gyfer addysg

Annwyl Mr. Matthew H T Evans,

Fy enw i yw Monty Middleton-Burn, ac rwy'n sylfaenydd 16 oed y Movement of Real Skills (MORS). Mae MORS yn fenter sydd wedi ymrwymo i hyrwyddo dull mwy ymarferol ac ar sail sgiliau o addysg o fewn y system Brydeinig, gyda'r nod o baratoi myfyrwyr yn well ar gyfer heriau'r byd go iawn.

Rwy'n cysylltu i ofyn yn garedig am eich caniatâd i ddosbarthu arolwg byr ymysg yr athrawon yn Ysgol Gyfun Gymraeg Glantaf. Nod yr arolwg hwn yw casglu mewnwelediadau a barn gan addysgwyr ar sut y gallai'r cwricwlwm presennol ddatblygu i wasanaethu anghenion myfyrwyr yn well.

Rydym yn credu bod athrawon yn ffynonellau amhrisiadwy o ddoethineb ar y pwnc hwn, a byddai eu hadborth yn cefnogi ein cenhadaeth yn sylweddol i hyrwyddo newid ystyrlon yn addysg.

Os byddwch yn agored i'r cynnig hwn, mae croeso i chi gysylltu â mi'n bersonol yn monty@mors.org.uk. Yn ogystal, gallwch ddysgu mwy am ein gweledigaeth a'n gwaith yn mors.org.uk.

Diolch yn fawr iawn am ystyried y cais hwn. Rwy'n edrych ymlaen at y posibilrwydd o weithio gyda'n gilydd i ysbrydoli dyfodol addysg sy'n gweithio.

Yn gywir,

Sylfaenydd, MORS

mors

a future for education

Dear Ms. Gillian Marshall,

My name is Monty Middleton-Burn, and I am the 16-year-old founder of the Movement of Real Skills (MORS). MORS is an initiative dedicated to advocating for a more practical and skills-based approach to education within the British system, focusing on better preparing students for real-world challenges.

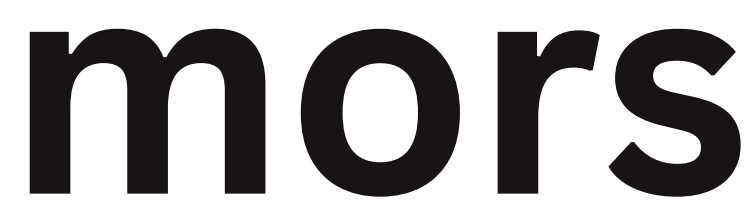

I am reaching out to kindly request your permission to distribute a brief survey among the teachers at Colchester County High School for Girls. The aim of this survey is to gather insights and opinions from educators on how the current curriculum could evolve to better serve students' needs. We believe teachers are invaluable sources of wisdom on this topic, and their feedback would greatly support our mission to foster meaningful change in education.

If you would be open to this proposal, please feel free to contact me personally at monty@mors.org.uk. Additionally, you can learn more about our vision and work at mors.org.uk.

Thank you very much for considering this request. I look forward to the possibility of working together to inspire a future of education that works.

Kind regards,

Founder, MORS

a future for education

Dear Mrs. Sarah Edwards,

My name is Monty Middleton-Burn, and I am the 16-year-old founder of the Movement of Real Skills (MORS). MORS is an initiative dedicated to advocating for a more practical and skills-based approach to education within the British system, focusing on better preparing students for real-world challenges.

I am reaching out to kindly request your permission to distribute a brief survey among the teachers at the Weald School. The aim of this survey is to gather insights and opinions from educators on how the current curriculum could evolve to better serve students' needs. We believe teachers are invaluable sources of wisdom on this topic, and their feedback would greatly support our mission to foster meaningful change in education.

If you would be open to this proposal, please feel free to contact me personally at monty@mors.org.uk. Additionally, you can learn more about our vision and work at mors.org.uk.

Thank you very much for considering this request. I look forward to the possibility of working together to inspire a future of education that works.

Kind regards,

Founder, MORS

mors

a future for education

Dear Mr. Jim Coupe,

My name is Monty Middleton-Burn, and I am the 16-year-old founder of the Movement of Real Skills (MORS). MORS is an initiative dedicated to advocating for a more practical and skills-based approach to education within the British system, focusing on better preparing students for real-world challenges.

I am reaching out to kindly request your permission to distribute a brief survey among the teachers at Shoreham Academy. The aim of this survey is to gather insights and opinions from educators on how the current curriculum could evolve to better serve students' needs. We believe teachers are invaluable sources of wisdom on this topic, and their feedback would greatly support our mission to foster meaningful change in education.

If you would be open to this proposal, please feel free to contact me personally at monty@mors.org.uk. Additionally, you can learn more about our vision and work at mors.org.uk.

Thank you very much for considering this request. I look forward to the possibility of working together to inspire a future of education that works.

Kind regards,

Founder, MORS

mors

a future for education

Dear Mr. Rob Dawson,

My name is Monty Middleton-Burn, and I am the 16-year-old founder of the Movement of Real Skills (MORS). MORS is an initiative dedicated to advocating for a more practical and skills-based approach to education within the British system, focusing on better preparing students for real-world challenges.

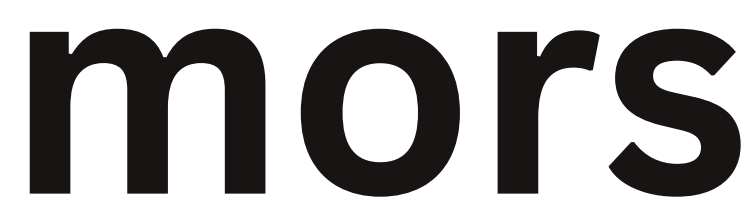

I am reaching out to kindly request your permission to distribute a brief survey among the teachers at Alston Moor Federation. The aim of this survey is to gather insights and opinions from educators on how the current curriculum could evolve to better serve students' needs. We believe teachers are invaluable sources of wisdom on this topic, and their feedback would greatly support our mission to foster meaningful change in education.

If you would be open to this proposal, please feel free to contact me personally at monty@mors.org.uk. Additionally, you can learn more about our vision and work at mors.org.uk.

Thank you very much for considering this request. I look forward to the possibility of working together to inspire a future of education that works.

Kind regards,

Founder, MORS

a future for education

Dear Mr. Jaideep Barot,

My name is Monty Middleton-Burn, and I am the 16-year-old founder of the Movement of Real Skills (MORS). MORS is an initiative dedicated to advocating for a more practical and skills-based approach to education within the British system, focusing on better preparing students for real-world challenges.

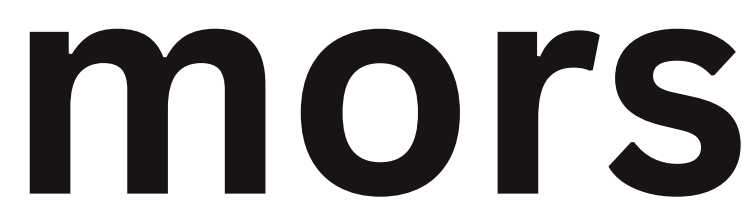

I am reaching out to kindly request your permission to distribute a brief survey among the teachers at Bristol Grammar School. The aim of this survey is to gather insights and opinions from educators on how the current curriculum could evolve to better serve students' needs. We believe teachers are invaluable sources of wisdom on this topic, and their feedback would greatly support our mission to foster meaningful change in education.

If you would be open to this proposal, please feel free to contact me personally at monty@mors.org.uk. Additionally, you can learn more about our vision and work at mors.org.uk.

Thank you very much for considering this request. I look forward to the possibility of working together to inspire a future of education that works.

Kind regards,

Founder, MORS

a future for education

Dear Mr. Bart Wielenga,

My name is Monty Middleton-Burn, and I am the 16-year-old founder of the Movement of Real Skills (MORS). MORS is an initiative dedicated to advocating for a more practical and skills-based approach to education within the British system, focusing on better preparing students for real-world challenges.

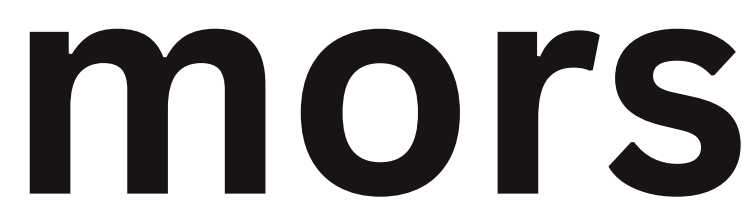

I am reaching out to kindly request your permission to distribute a brief survey among the teachers at Blundell's. The aim of this survey is to gather insights and opinions from educators on how the current curriculum could evolve to better serve students' needs. We believe teachers are invaluable sources of wisdom on this topic, and their feedback would greatly support our mission to foster meaningful change in education.

If you would be open to this proposal, please feel free to contact me personally at monty@mors.org.uk. Additionally, you can learn more about our vision and work at mors.org.uk.

Thank you very much for considering this request. I look forward to the possibility of working together to inspire a future of education that works.

Kind regards,

Founder, MORS

a future for education

Dear Ms Louise Simpson,

My name is Monty Middleton-Burn, and I am the 16-year-old founder of the Movement of Real Skills (MORS). MORS is an initiative dedicated to advocating for a more practical and skills-based approach to education within the British system, focusing on better preparing students for real-world challenges.

I am reaching out to kindly request your permission to distribute a brief survey among the teachers at Exeter School. The aim of this survey is to gather insights and opinions from educators on how the current curriculum could evolve to better serve students' needs. We believe teachers are invaluable sources of wisdom on this topic, and their feedback would greatly support our mission to foster meaningful change in education.

If you would be open to this proposal, please feel free to contact me personally at monty@mors.org.uk. Additionally, you can learn more about our vision and work at mors.org.uk.

Thank you very much for considering this request. I look forward to the possibility of working together to inspire a future of education that works.

Kind regards,

Founder, MORS

a future for education

Dear Mr. David Marchant,

My name is Monty Middleton-Burn, and I am the 16-year-old founder of the Movement of Real Skills (MORS). MORS is an initiative dedicated to advocating for a more practical and skills-based approach to education within the British system, focusing on better preparing students for real-world challenges.

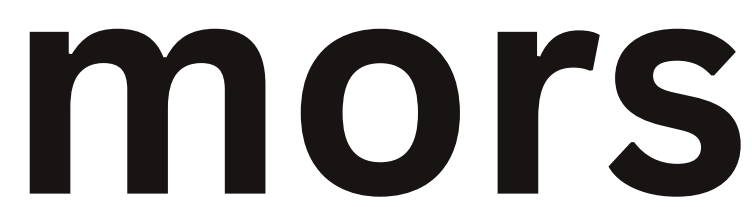

I am reaching out to kindly request your permission to distribute a brief survey among the teachers at Queen Elizabeth Grammar School. The aim of this survey is to gather insights and opinions from educators on how the current curriculum could evolve to better serve students' needs. We believe teachers are invaluable sources of wisdom on this topic, and their feedback would greatly support our mission to foster meaningful change in education.

If you would be open to this proposal, please feel free to contact me personally at monty@mors.org.uk. Additionally, you can learn more about our vision and work at mors.org.uk.

Thank you very much for considering this request. I look forward to the possibility of working together to inspire a future of education that works.

Kind regards,

Founder, MORS

a future for education

Dear Mr. Simon Jackson,

My name is Monty Middleton-Burn, and I am the 16-year-old founder of the Movement of Real Skills (MORS). MORS is an initiative dedicated to advocating for a more practical and skills-based approach to education within the British system, focusing on better preparing students for real-world challenges.

I am reaching out to kindly request your permission to distribute a brief survey among the teachers at Keswick. The aim of this survey is to gather insights and opinions from educators on how the current curriculum could evolve to better serve students' needs. We believe teachers are invaluable sources of wisdom on this topic, and their feedback would greatly support our mission to foster meaningful change in education.

If you would be open to this proposal, please feel free to contact me personally at monty@mors.org.uk. Additionally, you can learn more about our vision and work at mors.org.uk.

Thank you very much for considering this request. I look forward to the possibility of working together to inspire a future of education that works.

Kind regards,

Founder, MORS

mors

a future for education

Dear Mr. Bennet Carr,

My name is Monty Middleton-Burn, and I am the 16-year-old founder of the Movement of Real Skills (MORS). MORS is an initiative dedicated to advocating for a more practical and skills-based approach to education within the British system, focusing on better preparing students for real-world challenges.

I am reaching out to kindly request your permission to distribute a brief survey among the teachers at K.E.S. The aim of this survey is to gather insights and opinions from educators on how the current curriculum could evolve to better serve students' needs. We believe teachers are invaluable sources of wisdom on this topic, and their feedback would greatly support our mission to foster meaningful change in education.

If you would be open to this proposal, please feel free to contact me personally at monty@mors.org.uk. Additionally, you can learn more about our vision and work at mors.org.uk.

Thank you very much for considering this request. I look forward to the possibility of working together to inspire a future of education that works.

Kind regards,

Founder, MORS

mors

a future for education

Dear Mr. A Jacobs,

My name is Monty Middleton-Burn, and I am the 16-year-old founder of the Movement of Real Skills (MORS). MORS is an initiative dedicated to advocating for a more practical and skills-based approach to education within the British system, focusing on better preparing students for real-world challenges.

I am reaching out to kindly request your permission to distribute a brief survey among the teachers at Dixon Unity Academy. The aim of this survey is to gather insights and opinions from educators on how the current curriculum could evolve to better serve students' needs. We believe teachers are invaluable sources of wisdom on this topic, and their feedback would greatly support our mission to foster meaningful change in education.

If you would be open to this proposal, please feel free to contact me personally at monty@mors.org.uk. Additionally, you can learn more about our vision and work at mors.org.uk.

Thank you very much for considering this request. I look forward to the possibility of working together to inspire a future of education that works.

Kind regards,

Founder, MORS